Project Brief:
These works on the eighth floor of the Commonwealth Building are part of wide scale upgrading of facilities at the Hammersmith campus for the Faculty of Medicine. Once complete will provide a large suite of high quality laboratory, tissue culture and associated procedural and support space, with the addition of high quality open plan study and office areas to further promote and compliment the research carried out within the Department of Infectious Diseases.

The Department of Infectious Diseases & Immunity is a research-orientated department, and has a large undergraduate and postgraduate teaching programme. Translational research taking ideas from the patient's bedside to the laboratory and then back to the patient is central to that approach. Recent examples of success in this arena include the development of a novel diagnostic test for tuberculosis and a new therapy for hepatitis C.

Major research groupings are the Tuberculosis Research group, the Gram Positive Molecular Pathogenesis group, the Immunogenetics group, the Drug Discovery group, the Proteomics group and the Hospital Acquired Infection Unit. In addition, The International Health Unit is situated within the department and has a major interest in migrant health. The research philosophy is facilitated by the fact that many senior staff hold concurrent appointments at The Hammersmith Hospitals NHS Trust. In addition, the department runs successful undergraduate and postgraduate programmes including hosting many PhD students as well as 2 MSc courses as well as a short course in Infectious Diseases for physicians & scientists.
