This guide contains information about (self-)enrolment for modules on Blackboard Learn (http://bb.imperial.ac.uk).

First and second year BEng and MEng students:

You will be enrolled in all your modules some time before the beginning of the academic year, which means that they should automatically appear in your module list on Blackboard. However you can also self-enrol in any other modules to which you need access (e.g. because by mistake they haven’t been added automatically or because you are switching from EEE to EIE or the other way around etc) following the instructions below.

Third year BEng and MEng, fourth year MEng and MSc students:

You will need to self-enrol in all your modules, nothing will automatically appear in your module list on Blackboard. Please follow the instructions below.

Self-enrolment instructions:

Modules for the current academic year are made available for self-enrolment some time before the beginning of the academic year.

Please note that (self-)enrolment in a Blackboard module is in a sense permanent as it can only be cancelled by module lecturers and admins. This is usually not a problem in any case: even if you enrol in a module by mistake it typically only implies that it will stay in your module list. However there might be exceptions to this (e.g. modules for which enrolment might have other implications or might be deactivated etc). If you have any doubts please contact the module lecturer.

Figure 2: Type the beginning of the module’s name in the search box (for instance in this case we are interested in “VHDL and Logic Synthesis”) and click on “Go”. A list of the existing modules is available at http://intranet.ee.ic.ac.uk/electricalengineering/eecourses/index.asp

Figure 3: The outcome of the search (if successful) will include several versions of the module associated to different years. In this case we are interested in the 14-15 version but you might be interested in a future one. (If the version you are interested in is not included in the list, it might mean it has not been made available yet or that it is not offered in that year.) Place the mouse pointer next to the course ID and a grey roundel with a downward arrow will appear. Click on it.
