Imperial College London
Policy on the Recruitment of Ex-Offenders

- As an organisation using the Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) to assess applicants’ suitability for positions of trust, Imperial College London complies fully with the DBS Code of Practice and undertakes to treat all applicants for positions fairly. It undertakes not to discriminate unfairly against any subject of a Disclosure on the basis of a conviction or other information revealed.
- Imperial College London is committed to the fair treatment of its students, potential students or users of its services, regardless of race, gender, religion, sexual orientation, responsibilities for dependants, age, physical/mental disability or offending background.
- We have a written policy on the recruitment of ex-offenders, which is made available to all Certificate applicants at the outset of the recruitment process.
- We actively promote equality of opportunity for all with the right mix of talent, skills and potential and welcome applications from a wide range of candidates, including those with criminal records. We select all candidates for interview based on their skills, qualifications and experience.
- A Certificate is only requested after a thorough risk assessment has indicated that one is both proportionate and relevant to the position concerned. For those positions where a Certificate is required, all application forms and recruitment information will contain a statement that a Certificate will be requested in the event of the individual being offered the position.
- Where a Certificate is to form part of the recruitment process, we encourage all applicants called for interview to provide details of their criminal record at an early stage in the application process. We request that this information is sent under separate, confidential cover, to a designated person within Imperial College London and we guarantee that this information will only be seen by those who need to see it as part of the recruitment process.
- Unless the nature of the position allows Imperial College London to ask questions about your entire criminal record, we only ask about ‘unspent’ convictions as defined in the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974.
- We ensure that all those in Imperial College London who are involved in the recruitment process have been suitably trained to identify and assess the relevance and circumstances of offences. We also ensure that they have received appropriate guidance and training in the relevant legislation relating to the employment of ex-offenders, e.g. the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974.
- At interview, or in a separate discussion, we ensure that an open and measured discussion takes place on the subject of any offences or other matter that might be relevant to the position. Failure to reveal information that is directly relevant to the position sought could lead to withdrawal of an offer for a place on a course of study at Imperial College London.
- We make every subject of a DBS Certificate aware of the existence of the DBS Code of Practice and make a copy available on request.
- We undertake to discuss any matter revealed in a Certificate with the person seeking the position before withdrawing a conditional offer of employment.

Having a criminal record will not necessarily bar you from studying with us. This will depend on the nature of the course of study and the circumstances and background of your offences.
