RESPONDING TO COVID-19

Only essential research and operational activity is now taking place across all our campuses. At White City, we have taken the decision to close our research facilities and building access is only being granted in exceptional circumstances. We are continuing to fully support our community in student and commercial residences.

Current government guidelines state that construction activity is permitted to continue provided that safety guidance from Public Health England is rigorously enforced.

We are working closely with contractors who remain on site to ensure that social distancing measures are implemented and safe working distances are complied with. We will continue to monitor guidelines from Public Health England to ensure that construction workers continue to operate in the safest possible environment.

This update provides further information about building works and construction activities which remain on site for the time being.

BUILDING UPDATES

North site

Sir Michael Uren Hub
The Sir Michael Uren Hub opened in January, however contractors ISG have commenced planned refurbishment works on levels 9 to 11 of the building. A compound has been installed outside the building and works are forecast to take nine months until completion.

School of Public Health
Enabling works for the new School of Public Health building began in January. Current works involve site-wide utility and ground investigations, which are being delivered in phases, alongside arrangements for a temporary access road and car park.

South site

Scale Space
Contractors Erith remain on site and are progressing infrastructure works in order to meet all requirements in support of the Scale Space Buildings A and B.

The contractors for Scale Space, Western Building Systems, have stopped works for the time being, however the fit out contractors for Scale Space tenants are continuing with works at present.

A new roundabout has been built at the top of Depot Road to provide better access arrangements for vehicles and pedestrians on the south site. Temporary signage has been installed which will be replaced with permanent signage in the near future.
