

Macmillan Coffee Morning

A Macmillan Coffee Morning bake sale took place on Friday 29 September where staff members donated and purchased cakes raising £400 for Macmillan Cancer Support.

There were countless compliments on the bakers' creations and the Coffee Morning would not have been a success without them.

The bake sale also included a competition to win the title of Star Baker and the winning bake was a Ginger and Rum cake made by the very talented Lucy Stagg, Digital Media & Communications Officer, Faculty of Natural Sciences – pictured below with her badge!

Thank you to our judges, Jane Neary, Director of Campus Services and Karl Scholfield, Head of Special Projects and Executive Coordinator who did an excellent job of sampling the cakes – as you will see from the pictures they had a very tough decision to make.

Thanks to everyone who contributed, we look forward to raising more money for Macmillan next year!
