You can work while studying in the UK if:

1. You are on a Student or Tier 4 Student visa, and
2. Your passport sticker or identity card says one of the following:
'No recourse to public funds. Work (and any changes) must be authorised' or 'Work as in Tier 4 rules'

You cannot work if you are in the UK on a Short-term Student visa or General Visitor (tourist) visa.

How many hours per week can I work as a student?

- International students on a full time degree course can work:
 - for a maximum 20 hours per week during term time
 - full time during vacation (outside of term-time)
- Term dates for Undergraduate Students are available from:
www.imperial.ac.uk/registry/currentstudents/termdates
- Masters (MSc) students are permitted to work full-time during Christmas and Easter vacations (see term dates above) and after their course end date (usually 31 August / 30 September). The only exception to this is on a work placement as described below. Masters level students are NOT considered to be on vacation during the summer months.
- Postgraduate Research (PhD) Students: your vacation begins once you have completed all your academic requirements (i.e. submitted your thesis including final corrections).

Internships

Some UK companies offer students an opportunity to undertake an internship during their vacations. All student/Tier 4 student visa holders are permitted to undertake an internship during the Christmas and Easter holidays. However, only undergraduate students can undertake an internship during the summer vacation. The summer vacation starts after your formal end of term (see www.imperial.ac.uk/registry/currentstudents/termdates)

MSc students who wish to undertake employment during the summer must adhere to the rules for work placements defined above.

Can I continue working after my course has ended?

Your Tier 4 student visa is likely to continue for 4-6 months after your course end date. Upon reaching your formal course end date (or in the case of PhD students completing your academic work, i.e. submitting your dissertation/thesis including final corrections) you can start working full time on a temporary contract up until your visa expiry date or a maximum period of four months (whichever is sooner). NB: If you are on a one year Masters level programme under the Tier 4 Pilot Scheme, you can work for the 6 month period granted at the end of your course.

You must not continue working after this period even if your Tier 4 student visa lasts for more than 4 months beyond your course end date.

Once you reach your visa expiry date / the 4 month period after your course end date (whichever is sooner) you must either:

- Seek sponsorship from an employer for a Tier 2 General (Skilled Workers) visa.
- Seek sponsorship from Imperial College under Tier 1 (Graduate Entrepreneur) visa. Please note that there are limited places per participating institution.
- Investigate the possibility of a Tier 5 visa. Tier 5 covers temporary workers and the most relevant category within this tier for Imperial graduates is the "Tier 5 Temporary Worker – Government Authorised Exchange".
- PhD students may be eligible to apply for the Tier 4 Doctorate Extension Scheme
- Leave the UK.
