Trans Health – Current Awareness

With Pride events having taken place all summer, the NHS support team at Imperial College Library wanted to bring the season to a close by highlighting some key resources, recent publications, books, and e-learning on trans and non-binary healthcare. We know there are lots of teams across our partnered trusts working hard to provide excellent care for diverse patient groups, so it's always worthwhile to consider how best to approach our varied population.

We hope this short bulletin will prove useful to you, as well as serving as a reminder of the many sources of information available to you for clinical queries, research, service development, and CPD. As always, your librarians are here to help and will be happy to offer you the skills and evidence you need if you get in touch or visit us.

Important Update
While we'll continue to produce occasional content, this will be our last regular topic-focused current awareness bulletin - because we're now offering something better. KnowledgeShare, a custom current awareness service sent to your inbox at intervals chosen by you - focusing only on the clinical and professional areas of interest to you - is launching this month. It will also allow you to book training and request evidence searches directly from librarians.

We're offering KnowledgeShare to you as a way of saving you time, and ensuring that you see the emerging evidence that is relevant to you and your practice quicker. If you have questions about KnowledgeShare, contact your NHS Support Librarian.

You can register now at this link to receive bulletins.
