

Writing up Your Research for Publication – Target Articles

Please note these articles are a requirement for attending this course, you will not be enrolled onto this course if the Target Articles are not provided

The articles do not need to be important (or even interesting!) research articles, but they should:

- be taken from a journal you read regularly and the subject should be close to the subject of your PhD.
- be research articles, not reviews or surveys.
- be written by a native speaker, and come from a university or research institution in an English-speaking country (and does not need to be written by yourself).
- be approximately 8–10 A4 pages (not sheets) long; if there are lots of figures/photos, you can go up to 15 pages.
- have subheadings such as:
 - Abstract/ Summary;
 - Introduction/ Background;
 - Experimental/ Methodology;
 - Data Analysis/ Results,
 - Discussion/ Conclusion