

Next generation multi-functional PV-X technologies for multigeneration from the sun

Professor Christos N. Markides

This project involves combined computational modelling, design and experiments on advanced PV-X collector architectures. A coupled optical, electrical, thermal and electrochemical model will be developed to design the collector, followed by fabrication and testing to confirm performance.