Onboarding and Induction Checklist for Managers at Imperial

This checklist has been designed to help line managers plan and execute a successful, informative and welcoming induction for a new starter. This checklist is provided as guidance for the whole College, and any local requirements will need to be tailored to include the specific needs of the respected Faculties and Departments.

Line managers are accountable for the induction process.

Onboarding and Induction consist of many elements. A line manager may want to delegate (or share) some actions and responsibilities to others, for example, an administrator, coordinator, or Departmental Manager.

For instance:

- if a line manager asks an administrator to book welcome meetings, the line manager needs to ensure clarity about participants;
- If an Academic staff manages a Professional, Technical and Operational (PTO) staff, the Academic staff might want to liaise with other PTO staff on specific Induction and Development items and share the responsibility.

However, the line manager remains accountable for the whole process until the end of the probation period and ensures that a new starter has the correct information and feels welcome.

Below are important actions for line managers to cover and complete within specified timeframes. They refer to the main elements of the employee life cycle from recruitment to the end of probation:

1. Recruitment stage
2. Pre-start date
3. Day one (3a. Remote; 3b. On-campus)
4. Week one
5. First-month Induction
6. First six months (mid probation and end probation)
7. Development plan

Learning & Development.
The College strives to be an inclusive workplace, so you as a manager need to think about aspects of Equality Diversity and Inclusion as early as possible.

Updated July 2021 version 0.1
the recruitment stage to ensure the process is inclusive and follows the College guidelines:

- Complete/refresh Recruitment & Selection e-learning and face to face (at least one person on the panel should have done the Recruitment & Selection face to face training).
- Complete/refresh Unconscious bias e-learning

Things to remember:
- Ensure the language used for the job advert is inclusive
- Ensure panel members are representative of diverse backgrounds

Use the Talent link to submit your request to recruit. See here for the link to the Online Request to Recruit. You will need to provide:

- The department that the role will be based in
- The location the role will be based at
- If an Occupational Health Assessment is required to undertake the role
- The advertising channels you wish to use (e.g., jobs, guardian, nature, etc.)
- The Job Family and Job Level
- The working hours and type of contract associated with the role
- Funding details, including cost centre(s) and account code(s) associated with the role
- Names of the approval teams
- Names of panel members

If you need any support, contact: recruitmenthub@imperial.ac.uk, or your local representative

Start planning Induction as soon as you start recruiting for the role. Having a general plan for your new starter will help you be ready for when they accept the contract and for the start date. This checklist is here to help you.

Liaise with the Recruitment Administrator in relation to the details of the job offer and any required paperwork (for example, in the case of academic and clinical posts, the Consuls’ form completed and signed off at interviews) and contract of employment.

If your recruitment process was unsuccessful, you should still inform HR Recruitment Hub.

2. Pre-start date

Line Manager Action

After the hiring decision has been made, HR Recruitment Hub will send the contract to the new starter, with the line manager cc’d.

The line manager emails the new starter to:
- confirm the start date
- ask about any specific requests or requirements that the new starter would like to discuss in advance.
- Assess if your new starter requires support relating to disability - whether they require any additional equipment or system/equipment alterations due to disability. The Disability
Officer should be contacted if a Personal Emergency Evacuation Plan (PEEP) is required. For more information, refer to Disability support.

Once the new starter's account is created on the College system, the hiring manager should receive an automated email from the ICT Service Desk with the following information:

- CID number
- Job title
- Employee type
- Start date
- College email address
- How to activate their account
- Check they are granted access to relevant systems, software, resources

Email the HR Recruitment Hub team (recruitmenthub@imperial.ac.uk, or your local representative) to confirm that recruitment is completed by sending a completed hire request form and confirmation of:

- Name of role
- New starter name
- Start date
- Is it a new role or replacing somebody (provide the person's name)?
- General requirements for the role (equipment and ICT)
- Any specific requirements or adjustments required for the appointed individual (e.g., reasonable adjustments)

If your recruitment process was unsuccessful, please inform HR Recruitment Hub: recruitmenthub@imperial.ac.uk

Strat planning induction for your new starter using this checklist:

- A good start is to block out time in your diary to meet and spend time with the new starter on their first day and the first week; consider the essential tasks and people your new starter needs to meet
- Your new starter might need more frequent catch-ups in their first month.
- Plan for development needs and opportunities for your new starter (e.g., local and College-wide training, shadowing, reading)

Keep in touch with your new starter before their start date, e.g., email, a quick catch-up, invite them to a team day, or a team meeting.

If in case you are unable to meet them on the first day due to work patterns/conferences and need to delegate specific induction activities, you must arrange this in advance so that your representative can organise their work and have time to prepare. Again, this will help create a good and welcoming impression for your new starter.

Prepare the induction pack for the new starter to review on Day one. You can either send the documents to your new starter's College email address or print them:

Welcome letter

- Welcome letter
- College Strategy and Academic Strategy
- Imperial Essentials
- Imperial Values and behaviours
- College Organisation Chart
- Your Faculty/Department Organisation Chart
- Staff Diversity Networks
- Welcome Guide (if your department/team has one)
- Key contact details (the new starter’s direct team and any other useful contacts: Department Safety Officers, key suppliers, HR contacts, contacts in the Faculty, and people with similar roles elsewhere in the College).
- Health & Safety management structure
- Guide to leading and managing at Imperial (for line managers)

Instructions for New Starter

- Check that the new starter’s workplace is set up (on-campus and remote) a desk, chair, pedestal, and ICT equipment. Contact your local department if a loan laptop is required for home working (Hardware Desktop PC and Software purchase and renewal; Telephones - telephones, fixed extensions, mobile phones have to be ordered via the Telecoms Representative for your department/division, how to place telecom order, also check User Guide for College telephones)
- Ensure the new starter have been able to activate their account - they should have received relevant links to the account they applied with. Further information can be found on this ICT webpage.
- If you encounter any problems, contact the Service Desk service.desk@imperial.ac.uk

Worth remembering:

- Provide your new starter with details on how and when you/your representative will meet them on their first day (e.g., on-campus, Teams).
- Send a welcome email introducing your new team member to your team/department.
- As part of the College induction process, it is recommended that all divisions and departments make arrangements for the buddying/mentoring of new members of staff. An induction mentor/buddy is assigned to a new starter to help them through their first weeks at Imperial.
- Book your new starter to Imperial Insights (an event for all staff)
- (if you are hiring someone with line management responsibilities) Book your new line manager for an Induction session for managers

Send an introductory email
to the team and other relevant staff, e.g., Department Administration, to introduce the new staff member.

3. Day one (remote and on-campus)

Right to work documents will already have been checked and scanned during the interview/offer stage. If not, your Department Administrator may assist you in capturing and finalising the documents. The completed Right to work checklist must be sent to the HT Stuff Hub before Induction can commence.

New starter to complete the Employees Starter Checklist (sent to the new starter by HR). After your new starter completes it, the line manager checks if everything is correct. The Employees Starter Checklist, the employment contract, and the opt-out pension form (if required) need to be sent to the Finance team/designated person in the department for processing. They will process the form and send it to the College Payroll team to register the new starter on payroll.

*Payroll dates and deadlines for forms can be found on the Imperial College website. In some cases, the new starter needs to provide their P45 form and the documents specified above.

Complete the Day One Health and Safety Induction form – it is important to discuss even the new starter works from home most of the time. There is also a guidance note about the form for managers to refer to.

One to one meeting with line manager:
- Provide an overview of the induction programme
- Provide a list of colleagues (or ask someone to set those meetings for them), in the first instance, the immediate team, and more widely in other departments, that the new starter should contact to meet with and introduce themselves. Some of these meetings might need to take place after a month or two when the new starter has had a chance to understand their role better
- Explain what Imperial expectations of its staff (Expectations/Values, EDI)
- Introduce to Imperial Essentials and plan time for completing required training with six months of employment (critical areas of Safety, information security, and the working environment; has been developed to ensure that staff are aware of their responsibilities and expected behaviours while working at the College)
- Confirm working patterns, hours expected, flexible arrangements if appropriate
- Best way to contact you; communication arrangements and expectations with the team

- Safety for working in labs (if relevant)
- Refer to New Staff webpages

Inform about ID card:
- The ID card can be collected at the South Kensington location. This can be done at a later time of employment; check your local arrangements. Your new starter will need to take with them:
  - their CID number
  - contract of employment
  - signed Day One Health and Safety Induction Form
  - a photo will be taken at the point in a safe manner

Arrange a time to visit campus (if possible)
- Give a tour of campus, visit the workplace, bathroom, kitchen, safe working arrangements (Covid regulations)
- Respect on Campus: Working Together, Protecting Each Other

3b. Day one - on-campus Induction

Line Manager Action

Greet and meet:
Meet with a new staff member at your agreed meeting point/time (as you arranged as part of the "pre-arrival" actions)
- Welcome them to the College
- A brief introduction to the department and role
- Check any requirements not previously discussed
- Ask if they have any questions

Initial tour
- Visit workplace
- Introduce to immediate colleagues
- Bathroom
- Kitchens, drinks machines, canteens/restaurants
- Campus shops
- Security
- Photocopiers
- Fax/printer machine
- Stationery store
- Safety in labs (if relevant)

One to one meeting between the new starter and line manager - must be carried out by the line manager:
- Provide an overview of the induction programme
- Discuss major components of the job and initial tasks and responsibilities
- Provide a list of colleagues (or ask someone to set those meetings for them), in the first instance, the immediate team, and more widely in other departments, that the new starter should contact to meet with and introduce themselves. Some of these meetings might need to take place after a month or two when the new starter has had a chance to understand their role better
